Merits of structural Approach.

There are so many merits of structural approach. Some of them are as given below:

1. According to Jespersen, "Language cannot be separated from sound." In this way the approach emphasises more on speech of language learning.
2. With a well-selected and well-graded programme, this approach can be effectively adopted at all stages.
3. It creates appropriate environment for learning the language.
4. Structural approach can help in teaching prose, poetry etc. as viewed by R.K. Jain!
5. The principles on which this approach is based, are scientific.
6. It fulfils all the fourfold objectives of language teaching — Listening, speaking, reading and writing.
7. At the time of learning structure the child inductively learns some grammar.
8. It makes both teachers and students active which is psychological sound.
9. By using this approach, the teacher can attend a large number or almost all students of the class.
